A number of meetings concerned with machine translation took place during the month. On 6 February, Chief, FDD, attended a meeting of CIA representatives which was addressed by Dr. Piori and Mr. Tucker, Vice President and Director of Research respectively of IBM. The theme of the presentation was the IBM intention to continue linguistic research in fields of interest to the intelligence community.

On 8 February a meeting was held to discuss the proposed Joint Automatic Language Processing Center with representatives of MT research projects. The three agencies sponsoring the proposal were represented by Robert Dailey and Ruth Davis of the Defense Department, Richard See of NSF, and [REDACTED] and Chief, FDD, of CIA. The MT project representatives

Standards. The invitees felt that there should not be a Center but a committee of five to nine members, whose chairman should be impartial yet knowledgeable in MT research, and whose members should include representatives of hardware groups and the President of the Association for Machine Translation and Computational Linguistics. No course of action resulted from the meeting.
